TURNTRAGEDY BECKS LEAD TARMOUTH'S LIFE

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—With the word from London that the beautiful Countess of Yarmouth, formerly Alice Thaw, Harry E. Thaw's sister, is broken in health, it is not in spirit as well, because of her health, the fourth of the women whose lives have been greatly influenced by him is shown to have become a victim of his reckless, dardovell career.

Evera Noble, Harry Thaw's wife, is said to be in a state of nervous collapse, and the constant strain since the St. Valentine's day tragedy that she is able to go to the Thaw's only at rare intervals. Mrs. Charles T. Robinson, his wife's mother, is said to be in a state of nervous collapse, and the constant strain since the St. Valentine's day tragedy that she is able to go to the Thaw's only at rare intervals.

Asked to be left out. Such a state of affairs is almost unprecedented in British society. It is the custom for members of the gentry, such as the Countess of Yarmouth, to request an invitation to some party or affair, and not only make the request, but to be sure that it is made known to the court chamberlain, and that he is sure to be left out of consideration.

It is the custom for members of the gentry, such as the Countess of Yarmouth, to request an invitation to some party or affair, and not only make the request, but to be sure that it is made known to the court chamberlain, and that he is sure to be left out of consideration.

THAW CAUSED MARRIAGE. The Countess felt the disgrace the more personally, it is said, as it was Harry Thaw who was responsible for her marriage to Lord Yarmouth. It was Harry Thaw who brought the Countess of Yarmouth to America with him, declaring at the time that he was "in love with her."

Now that Yarmouth is in country home in Yarmouth, there is no more to be said of his young and beautiful aunt, Elizabeth Thaw. The Earl made love to her ardently, but she would have none of him. Then Yarmouth shifted his attentions to Alice Thaw. This seriously alarmed Mrs. William Thaw, the girl's mother.

It is said that Mrs. Thaw expostulated with Harry and told him that she would never consent to a marriage between her daughter and the penniless Englishman, even if he had a title. But Harry persisted. Then Mrs. Thaw whisked her daughter off to Florida, but it was not long before Harry and the Earl appeared in Florida again.

Finally the Earl was accepted in spite of everything. It was said that it was brought about by Harry Thaw, who was said to be in a state of nervous collapse, and the constant strain since the St. Valentine's day tragedy that she is able to go to the Thaw's only at rare intervals.

QUARREL AT WEDDING. The indiscretions immediately preceding the marriage turned the Earl and Harry Thaw into bitter enemies. It was said that the Earl of Yarmouth held up the wedding coach and delayed the bride half an hour to punish his daughter for the refusal to accept his demands for the return of his daughter's dowry.

SHORT TRIAL FOR THAW EXPECTED BY PROSECUTION. NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—It is practically settled in the District Attorney's office just what will be done by the prosecution in presenting its case against Harry E. Thaw for the murder of Stanford Whitely on the Madison Square Hotel Garden.

From the prosecution's standpoint the trial will be a short one. About five witnesses will be examined in presenting the direct case. These witnesses will tell of the shooting and the events that happened on the Madison Square Hotel garden.

Pandemonium reigned in the Boston Stock Exchange the second the gong sounded at 10 o'clock to-day, and the crowd of brokers who surged about the Trinity pole were half crazed a little later when the stock fell with a crash from 40 to 26, entailing a loss of between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000 to those who had bought on yesterday's rise.

It was the most sensational half day's trading in the history of the Boston Stock Exchange.

The optimism that has prevailed for several days among the followers of this brand of the bronze commodity was still in evidence when the market opened, and the first record of the tape told of the purchase of a thousand share block at 40, up 1 1/2.

Refused Demand for Money, Hurls Bomb. The unknown who is supposed to have been a Russian, went into the bank a few minutes before 12 o'clock and asked to see Richard H. Rushton, the president. He was granted an audience and demanded money.

His manner and speech indicated that he was mentally agitated and the loan was refused. With the final expression of refusal from Rushton, the man drew a cylindrical-shaped object from his pocket and let it fly. The office was wrecked and the interior of the banking department scattered about.

By a miracle Rushton escaped uninjured. The bank is on the ground floor of the Fulfill building and the place was filled with clerks and business men.

been witnessed on the floor of the exchange. Brokers with stop orders saw the prices slipping below the prices at which they had been instructed to sell, with no chance to execute their orders.

One of the leading Stock Exchange houses had a slip order on Trinity at 25. Before they could do anything with the order it had dropped to 20. The trading was so rapid, and the brokers particularly on the inside so frantic that it was simply impossible to do the business with which they had been commissioned in the time at their disposal.

In the minutes after the drop of four points Trinity recovered and sold at 28. The first trade of this stock was made on a margin, and many a dealer had it in his hands at 28. The trading was so rapid, and the brokers particularly on the inside so frantic that it was simply impossible to do the business with which they had been commissioned in the time at their disposal.

Market Fell in Line. To add to the confusion to-day at least a dozen Exchange Building houses were without Stock Exchange ticker service for the first time. The trouble was caused by a circuit breaker.

The Opinions of WORKINGMEN, for Instance, Don't Seem to Count
Much in Measuring Public Sentiment

The opinion of no account.

[Perhaps this is due to the fact that there is no political campaign on just now. NEXT FALL the workingman's opinion will be of more value. A pretty good reason, perhaps, why workingmen favor having elections EVERY YEAR.]

We print herewith a partial list of the labor organizations that have taken action AGAINST biennial elections. The question naturally suggests itself, How many members of one of these unions does it take to equal a bank president or a corporation lawyer as an exponent of "public sentiment"?

WOOLLY little Teddy Bear, stuffed to the very grills.
Was sitting on his haunches in a nursery full of frills;
The rugs were soft and downy, the room was large and bright,
But the Teddy Bear undoubtedly was spoiling for a fight.
"Cheer up!" remarked a Frolic Dog before the fire:
You have a swell apartment. What more should bears desire?
Toen, with a most disdainful snarl and a sneaky sideways glare,
"You listen," he snarled, taking a look at the Teddy Bear.

"Now listen!" he continued, as the Dog seemed to speak.
"You fly with Baby's mother every morning in the week.
She takes you to the malline, she takes you through the park,
She takes you out to the woods, she takes you out old far,
She takes you calling on her friends and taking them to dine,
She takes you in the car, she takes you in the mine made of silk,
She takes you several times a day to bonbon, cakes and all,
The Baby stays at home with me, and I am his nursemaid's care.
Wonder we are not the same?" said the little Teddy Bear.

"SOMETIMES the mother sees us for a moment after tea: She lets the Baby kiss her once and never looks at me. I'm not puffed up with family pride, I keep no family log. But any well-bred Bear should class a boy's a Poodle Dog. And as for Baby—bless her heart!—that Baby's got you beat As far as from South Boston to the shining Judgment Seat. And if, at last, the mother doesn't meet her Baby there, Know her—ill, stick to Baby" said the little Teddy Bear.
